

The Right to Information

- In processing a grievance the employer is obligated to provide information that the union needs to process grievances. A steward may request information from the company.
- When you are investigating a grievance.
- When you are preparing for a grievance meeting
- When deciding whether to drop or advance a grievance
- When preparing for a grievance.
- Requests for information can be made orally. However it is far better if they are made in writing.